8. Activities Carried out / Detail Description of the event:

A field trip has been organized for the collection of water and soil samples from various localities for analysis. Students have visited a nearby river, wetland, and forested area to gather samples. During the trip, participants have learnt proper sampling techniques, including how to use collection tools and store samples for laboratory analysis. This hands-on experience has provided insights into the ecological importance of water and soil quality, as well as combines practical science with outdoor adventure.
