Preamble

Nalbari College has consistently demonstrated excellence in art and culture along with academic pursuits. The Seema Biswas Centre for Films and Performing Arts, Dept. of English was established in 2017 to inculcate interest in students in the field drama.

SUNAG is a cultural organization established in 1998 at Kaithalkuchi, Nalbari. It promotes activities in the field of drama in the midst of a natural setting. As a part of the activities in the field of drama, "Patharnaatmala" is held annually in Kaithalkuchi by SUNAG during the month of February/March in a natural setting. Here various dramas are staged by local artists and from artists across the state. The organization has played an important role in motivating and promoting young minds in the field of drama.

This partnership between the Seema Biswas Centre for Films and Performing Arts, Dept. of English, Nalbari College and SUNAG aim to enhance dramatic skills among the students and also fostering in them greater participation and appreciation for drama.

Seema Biswas Centre for Films and Performing Arts, Dept. of English, Nalbari College, Nalbari, and SUNAG are collectively referred to as the parties/institutions, and individually as party/institution.

Objectives

The objective of the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between Seema Biswas Centre for Films and Performing Arts, Dept. of English, Nalbari College, Nalbari, and SUNAG focuses on several key goals:

1. To make students hone their skills in the art of drama by making them play an active role in the annual dramatic activities.
2. Facilitating students to participate in the annual activities and also interact with artists both local and across the state so that they can learn from their skills and experiences, and gain new perspectives on art and drama.

There will be no financial obligations on both parties under this agreement.

General Coordinators:

Each party shall designate an administrative office/department to oversee and facilitate the implementation of any agreements arising out of this MoU.
